There is a good deal of a kick left in old Mr. Winter yet.

Paris is scarcely gay with its postal service practically suspended.

Probably Barre-Montpelier has already won the base ball championship for 1909.

The editorial commendations of President Taft's tariff message are as long as Taft's message was short, and that was what the newspapers were commending, too.

Railroad Magnate Harriman seems to have been in collision with the laws of health, with the damage resulting chiefly to himself. It will take some time to clear away the wreckage.

We shall have about three days more of Roosevelt and then Prof. Starr of Chicago university, that stellar light in the field of intellectual notoriety, says that Africa will have him for good and all, probably. Prof. Starr will be disappointed, no doubt, to see Roosevelt, a year older, returning to the scene of his late activities.

AN OLD STORY.

If Henry Clay Ide gets the appointment of United States minister to Spain to succeed William M. Collier of New York, it will be another case where a Vermonter had to leave his native state in order to secure official preferment, for it is said that in case the office goes to him New York state, where he now resides, will be credited with the honor. Since his return from the Philippine Islands, Mr. Ide has spent the greater part of the time in New York, although St. Johnsbury, Vermont, we doubt not, will lay a vigorous claim to him as one of her own, and with considerable right, too. By the same token Vermont can claim him. Mr. Ide is a native of the state and he spent his life here until 1891, when he was pounced upon for a foreign commission, going to Samoa as United States commissioner. Since that time he has enjoyed particular favor, being appointed to various positions, chief among and in which he did his most notable work was that of governor-general in the Philippine Islands, having first gone there with the now President Taft as a member of a commission to establish a civil government. The close relationship which he sustained with President Taft at that time will probably land him in some good governmental position at home or abroad, as the present executive has, it is understood, a good opinion of the Vermonter. In view of his past services, it will not be necessary to state our conviction that Mr. Ide will be able to fill acceptably the position of minister to Spain or some other office even of higher rank.

A GOOD DEAL IN A NAME.

The action of one of the Hartlands in Vermont in changing its name to Everts in honor of Maxwell Everts is occasioning considerable of a disturbance outside of that town because of the historical glories which the change has robbed the place of. A protest in the Windsor Journal brings information about the original name of the place which is very interesting, and which, from the standpoint of historical association, makes one wonder that North Hartland should have shifted even for the honorable name of Everts. But there is a utilitarian side of the question, developed in latter days, largely for the better identification of a town in railroad work, which commends the dropping of North, South, East and West Such-and-Such-a-Town and which does commend the action of North Hartland in taking a thoroughly distinctive name, even at the pain of pulling up old associations by the roots.

Nevertheless, the protest in the contemporary furnishes us information which is worth preserving as one of the former glories of North Hartland, if for nothing else. It reads:

"Hartland was substituted for Hartford, on June 15, 1782. North Hartland was in existence before the Hossan Doton map of Windsor county. Hartland came, like many of the good old English names, with our ancestors from the mother country to Vermont by way of Connecticut. The original Hartland is in the north-west corner of Devonshire, where Hartland Point and Hartland Quay and Hartland Town, as well as Hartland Mill and Hartland Abbey, appear upon the map within a radius of three miles. Can it be that Englishmen are not so easily confused as we? Old Hartland's name-sake is in Hartford county, Connecticut, where also are Hartford, West Hartford, East Hartford and East Hartford Meadow. The Connecticut Hartland is situated between East Hartland, West Hartland and North Hartland. Are the people of the Nutmeg state better able than Vermonters to distinguish between names of places? The name has belonged also to Vermont for one hundred and twenty-six years. There is beauty, strength and freshness in the name of North Hartland. It has local flavor and color. It has historic associations. It conveys to the mind of the traveler an idea of locality. These qualities are blotted out with in-

CURRENT COMMENT

Abusing the Veterans.

The Morrisville News develops a sacrilegious streak this week. It saucers the elders. Commenting on recent news items that two town clerks have served over fifty years apiece, the News says: "We venture the assertion that nothing in either of these towns has done more to drive the young men out of them than the manipulation of a town office. If you want to keep the young men at home, those who make up the brawn and muscle, as well as the intellect of the community, and who identify themselves with the best interests of the town, give them occasional recognition in it by calling them to serve in public office—something that has a bit of remuneration in it and is not all honor." There would be less getting out of the state by young men if there were less half-century holding office by one man.—Burlington News.

Bowing to Public Opinion.

That institutions which depend on the patronage of the public for their existence are pretty sure to govern the quality, as well as the quantity, of their products by the public demand is again illustrated by the action of men representing three hundred and fifty moving picture show places in New York, in choosing a censoring committee of five to pass upon all pictures exhibited and songs sung in their theatres. The function of this committee is to make thorough inspection and careful rulings, to the end that nothing of an objectionable nature may be charged against the entertainments presented in the houses concerned.

It is probably safe to say that, so long as public sentiment to a great extent seemed to demand entertainments of a questionable character, managers of playhouses not only took no measures themselves to purify the moral atmosphere of their establishments, but strongly resented any attempts on the part of others to do so. No sooner, however, did it become convincingly apparent that real public sentiment—the sentiment of the substantial public—was opposed to, and even intolerant of, the vulgar and coarsely suggestive in the amusement line, and earnestly desirous of the clean and wholesome, then the amusement-producers began to leech themselves to eliminate the objectionable and present the features which the public demanded and for which it manifested a willingness to pay. So it goes. The public usually gets what it demands by way of service from those dependent upon it.—Manchester Union.

THE TEST OF TIME

"How long have they been in business?" An answer to this question is necessary to fix the standing of any business house. Before any concern can claim high rank in the business world, its stability must be proven by The Test of Time. And the longer it has been in business with an honorable record, the higher it is rated by public opinion.

In the banking world, no less than in other lines of business, time must test the strength of any institution. It takes time to show whether the loans of a bank are good, whether its management is conservative, whether its policy is safe, whether it can combine these important features, and be progressive.

This bank has a record of twenty-four years successful business, twenty-four years of satisfactory service to the people, and with one year more from the 13th day of April this institution will have completed a Quarter of a Century of business, Being the Oldest Bank for Savings in the City of Barre, and one of the most important factors in the early development of the Granite industry, as well as in the growth and development of the City of Barre, during this entire period.

With nearly 4,500 depositors it still endeavors to treat its patrons with the same prompt attention and courtesy, and invites all or a portion of your banking business.

Deposits made on or before April 6th will draw interest from April 1st, free of taxes under $2,000, in accordance with the State Law of Vermont.

THE DUST FIEND.

The Nuisance Now Magnified to Unbearable Proportions.

The dust fiend has now assumed such huge proportions not only on our roads but in our buildings that any practicable means of subjugating this baneful influence should be to the public advantage. Several specifics have been devised to achieve this desideratum, but they have only proved immediately successful; while the primitive methods of watering and distributing damp sawdust have proved not only expensive but practically useless. One medium, however, which experiments have shown to be unusually efficacious has recently been introduced upon the market under the name of "Cremopid." By its use wooden floors can be kept as clean as polished linoleum, while the atmosphere is also kept free from dangerous dust particles with comparatively little trouble and expense.

The specific is in the form of a liquid which is sparingly distributed over the floor. Its effect is to weigh all dust particles so that they cannot rise into the air by any means, but roll along the floor when a broom is applied, so that they can be easily collected and removed. As it is not requisite to rub the floor with the medium, application can be effected very quickly, while, when swept, the boards are left perfectly clean and the atmosphere dustless. It is also a powerful germicide. The liquid is mixed with about 80 per cent. of water, and when administered may be left on the floor for four or six weeks according to the extent of the traffic. Under these circumstances, it is well adapted for use in warehouses, shops, public buildings, theatres, offices and so forth, where the accumulation of dust entails considerable annual expenditure. Cremopid is already being extensively used in schools, libraries, etc., while the executive of the Edinburgh exhibition employed it for the treatment of the floors in the machinery and industrial buildings, greatly to the satisfaction of the exhibitors. It has the distinct advantage that it has no injurious effects upon the most delicate materials used for ladies' dresses, should they trail upon the floor.—Scientific American.

JINGLES AND JESTS

A Good Manager.

Mike Clancy had only just been placed in charge of a gang of laborers on a building in Belfast, and the opportunity to show his authority could not be passed over.

"Now," he said to the men, "yez are to work for me, and I want every man to understand what's what. I kin lick anny man in the gang!" The insult was swallowed by all except one rough-looking customer at the end of the line. "Ye can't lick me, Mike Clancy!" he said insinuatingly. "I can't, can't I?" bellowed Mike. "No, yez can't!" was the reply. "Then go to the office and get your money!" thundered Mike. "I'll have no in-sub-ord-nates here!"—The Bits.
